

---

Creature Comforts TV characters tackles disability

Posted by scipilot - 2007/12/01 10:54

---

Has anybody seen the new UK disability awareness campaign called 'Creature Discomforts' ?

While I think any awareness of disability discrimination is good, I do feel they have made a big mistake by covering mobility issues only! Whats your views?

I have added a bit in the news section of my site if anybodies interested <http://www.ableize.com/news/Creature-Discomforts-Addresses-Disability-n26.html>

=====

Re:Creature Comforts TV characters tackles disability

Posted by Penn - 2007/12/01 11:32

---

I have only seen clips, not the whole show. I think it's an excellent idea. You can make a point of something without making it so serious, nobody is interested.

You could well have a point about the mobility aspect. Disability comes in many forms, not just physical. I suppose they could cover cerebral palsy, brain injuries etc etc. Disability can be very frightening to able-bodied people which can make life a difficult for us in some circumstances. I think the more we can educate the general public, the better it will be for all of us

=====

Re:Creature Comforts TV characters tackles disabil

Posted by scipilot - 2007/12/21 11:30

---

An update on the Creature Discomforts story is that its due to run on ITV over christmas, i have included and updated this plus the times it will be shown at my disability site here <http://www.ableize.com/news/Creature-Discomforts-Addresses-Disability-at-Chris-n26.html>

=====